

HASKELL'S GAG.

MR. HAMMOND FIGHTS AN ATTEMPT TO THROTTLE DEBATE.

Rept of the Republicans to Close the Debate on the Tariff Bill, and to Pass it Without Reading It. The Resolution Offered by a Point of Order—The Tariff Men Aroused.

Special to The Constitution.

WASHINGTON, February 17.—The strongest speech against Mr. Haskell's motion to throttle debate on the tariff bill today was made by Colonel Hammond. He showed that in this very debate the house had repeatedly recognized the fact that the bill must be considered by clauses, and that was the established rule of the house on all bills relating to the revenue. He warned Mr. Haskell that the adoption of his motion limiting debate to one hour would not accomplish his purpose of rushing through sixty pages of the bill with out ever having them read, for the right to offer amendments would remain and a thousand might be offered.

Mr. Haskell asked: "Will you offer amendments merely to consume time?"

Mr. Hammond replied, with great emphasis: "I would offer a million to defeat such a purpose as this."

The general applause of the democratic side approved that sentiment. Mr. Robinson's speech was a bomb among the republicans. Mr. Keiser was ready to overrule the point of order against Mr. Haskell's motion, and rush the bill through under the arbitrary decisions, but he was afraid that Robinson's following, combined with the democrats, would overrule him, and though there were frequent demands for a vote on the point of order, the hour arrived for Shakerford's obsequies, so that he could have until Monday to count his hosts upon the floor, and after adjournment Robinson was earnestly importuned to recede from his point of order, or to make no further war on the motion. He flatly refused to change his attitude assumed to-day. Kelley and Keiser are consulting to-night, and if they find that republicans will follow Robinson to reverse Mr. Haskell's motion, they will agree that Keiser shall sustain the point of order, and thus defeat the motion. They see their mistake, and regret Mr. Haskell's action to-day. It has taken up the same ground that the democrats do not mean to be gagged. To-day's proceedings have consequently reduced the chances of passing the tariff bill this session. F. H. R.

CALL ON PROTECTION.

The Senate to Sit on Monday Until a Vote is Reached.

WASHINGTON, February 17.—In the senate Mr. Butler presented resolutions of the general assembly of South Carolina in relation to federal aid to common schools. Mr. Call made a resolution specifically charging the committee on appropriations to consider the necessity for an additional force in the general land offices and in the local office in Florida to expedite the progress of contested homestead cases in Florida. The resolution was referred to the committee. The tariff bill was taken up and Mr. Sherman offered a complicated amendment affecting the tariff on steel. Mr. Call made Mr. Sherman's amendment the text for an elaborate speech, in which he discussed the fundamental principles that should guide legislative power in dealing with general questions of labor, capital and production.

The protection of American labor against foreign labor was, he said, a solemn duty, an idea having no foundation in truth. American labor and foreign labor, by natural law which no statute could change, worked together for the benefit of each, and the protection of American labor against foreign labor had no connection with its protection from poverty and want and in the adjustment of a tariff for revenue, its incidental effects should be directed to the securing, subordinating the purpose of the revenue, the employment and just compensation to all persons living under our laws. The debate without action continued until the house resolution on the death of Representative Shakerford was taken up. Mr. Call gave notice that he would ask the senate to sit the bill on Monday. Mr. Ransom offered the customary resolutions on the death of Mr. Shakerford, and after addresses by him and Mr. Vance, senate adjourned.

HAMMOND'S DEFENSE.

The Speaker Pleading by a Point of Order Which He Does Not Know How to Handle.

WASHINGTON, February 17.—The house at 11:35 adjourned without action. The pending amendments were those offered by Mr. Bayne, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Kasson, of Iowa, one reducing the duty on sugar between numbers thirteen and sixteen, Dutch standard, from three to two and a half cents per pound, the other fixing the rates at two and three-quarters. Mr. Hammond, from the agricultural committee, made a speech ridiculing the declaration made some days ago by Mr. Casson, of Iowa, that the agricultural products of the country were protected to the extent of $72,000. In a list of these products printed in the gentleman's speech he found "plum pudding," "macaroni," "veal cutlets," "caviar," "oil," and "frogs." If there was a farm which produced such articles, he would like to buy it. Mr. Darrell, of Louisiana, said that the people whom he represented asked for nothing more than they were entitled to, the same protection to their sugar and cotton as was accorded to every other interest. He paid his respects to Mr. Bayne, who had stepped over to the free traders, on this sugar question and to Mr. Casson, of Iowa, who had stepped over to the protectionists. He claimed to have checks amounting to four thousand dollars on one city bank, and when asked for board gave as a reason for not paying that he could not get money on his drafts for several days. He contracted with one or two retail grocers for the purchase of their stocks, exhibited checks or drafts, which looked genuine, borrowed money, beat several boarding houses and jumped the town in the direction of Atlanta.

THE IRISH APPROVER.

THE RINGLEADER ACCEPTED AS CROWN'S EVIDENCE.

James Carey, the Dublin Counselman, Who Headed the Assassins, Betrays His Associates and Testifies Against Them—The Origin, Growth and Aims of the Irish Invincibles.

DUBLIN, February 17.—12:30 p. m.—All the prisoners charged with conspiracy were placed in the dock except Patrick Delaney. The sensation had scarcely subsided before counsel Carey stepped into the witness box.

The surprise amongst the prisoners was unbounded. Counsel for the prisoners objected to the question of Mr. Murphy, crown counsel, and alluded to Carey as an "infamous witness." Great excitement followed the remark, which drew a sharp rebuke from the magistrate. James Carey proceeded to give his evidence. His appearance at the witness table created a profound sensation. He was hissed by the other prisoners. He deposed that he joined the Fenian brotherhood in 1862. He mentioned as members of the Fenian directory, Thomas Brennan, late secretary of the land league, and James O'Connor. He spoke in a voice so low that the prisoners in the dock cried, "Speak up!" He deposed that he was always treasurer of the Fenian brotherhood. The funds, he said, were always in a bad state. Here one of the prisoners interposed the remark, "Because you pocketed them."

The witness continued his story. He deposed that he was always treasurer of the Fenian brotherhood. The funds, he said, were always in a bad state. Here one of the prisoners interposed the remark, "Because you pocketed them."

WASHINGTON, February 17.—The house appropriation committee has completed the sundry civil appropriation bill and will report it on Monday. It calls for $24,000,000. The $10,000 in bill for the national board of health was struck out, and the signal service appropriation was considerably cut down. The amount asked for signal reports from cotton belt was struck out, on the ground that these reports are of value only for speculative purposes.

FOREPAUGH'S BEAUTY.

The Jury Rendered a Verdict in Miss Montague's Third Case.

PHILADELPHIA, February 17.—Miss Louise Montague's suit against Adam Forepaugh to recover damages for injuries sustained by being thrown by an alleged vicious elephant was given to the jury yesterday afternoon at two o'clock. Judge Arnold, in his charge, read from the testimony of both sides and explained the principles of law which he said were for the jury to apply. At 4:15 p. m. the jury were dispersing. Miss Montague said to R. P. White, of counsel for Forepaugh:

"You were very unkind to me."

"Not nearly so much as you were to me," replied the lawyer, with a bland smile. "What you said that I was old. No lady ever said that to me before."

"Indeed!" replied the beauty, in a scornful voice. "Then they never could have loved you."

Just ahead of Miss Montague in going down the steps was police officer Myers, who had testified for Forepaugh and who said some unpleasant things about Van Rensselaer Barnhart, one of the beauty's witnesses. Miss Montague impulsively snatched him by the ribs with her umbrella handle. The officer turned around with an indignant "Who struck me?" The beautiful beauty smiled and chuckled in a silk handkerchief and flitted past him into the midst of the crowd, which opened before her.

After having been out for about half an hour the jury came into court and asked for instructions on the question of the elephant's alleged viciousness. Judge Arnold instructed them that they themselves were the judges as to fact and the relative credibility of witnesses. The jury came in again at quarter of four, with a verdict. The court, however, had adjourned and the verdict was sealed.

WIMBERLY'S WOE.

Charges Filed Against Him That He Betrayed the Republican Party.

Special to The Constitution.

WASHINGTON, February 17.—During this week, Jesse Wimberly, who is an applicant for a heavy check, probably has met all his chances for appointment. It is reported on the best authority that leading republicans in Georgia have filed with the secretary of the treasury very damaging charges against Wimberly to wit: that in 1874, he said Wimberly, a citizen of the first congressional district, for a consideration, did agree to make the race in said district as an independent republican candidate against the republican candidate duly nominated in said district; that Wimberly received a large sum of money, made the race as an independent candidate, was badly defeated, and thereby helped to elect the democratic candidate. The republican claim that they elected Andrew Sloan, who was a republican in 1874, and that they could have elected a republican successor but for Wimberly's sale. Wimberly's chances are very slim now.

Special to The Constitution.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., February 17.—Prior Burnett, who so severely stabbed West Brown on Thursday night, was to-day surrendered by his bondsmen and lodged in jail on account of the dangerous condition of Brown's wounds. T. H. Starn, representing a retired merchant of Louisville, Ky., has been in this city several weeks swindling the boarding houses and practicing frauds generally. He claimed to have checks amounting to four thousand dollars on one city bank, and when asked for board gave as a reason for not paying that he could not get money on his drafts for several days. He contracted with one or two retail grocers for the purchase of their stocks, exhibited checks or drafts, which looked genuine, borrowed money, beat several boarding houses and jumped the town in the direction of Atlanta.

NEW YORK'S CHARTER.

Dorman B. Eaton's Arguments Against It and Professor Dwight for It.

Special to The Constitution.

NEW YORK, February 17.—At a hearing on the charter amendments proposed by Mayor Edson to-day, Professor Theodore T. Dwight, representing the society of political reform, spoke in favor of the changes giving the mayor greater power and fixing the responsibility on him. Dorman B. Eaton opposed this charter as putting too much power into the hands of one man, and was in conflict with a great number of existing laws, all based on the system of many-headed commissions.

NEW YORK FOG.

Trips of the Ferry Boats and Sound Steamers All Delayed.

Special to The Constitution.

NEW YORK, February 17.—The trips of the ferry boats and sound steamers are much interfered with by a dense fog. Thousands of Brooklyn, Jersey and Staten Island people were delayed in getting to the city this morning. All the land boats came to anchor waiting for the fog to lift, and they did not reach the city until 6 p. m. The ocean steamships arriving at Sandy Hook anchored before the Narrows. The passengers and mails of the city of Richmond, the human steamer, was brought to the city in tug. Clearing weather came this afternoon for the first time for a fortnight.

THE BROADFORD MINES.

SEVENTY MINERS DROWNED AND CRUSHED TO DEATH.

The Surface Above Breaks Loose and Falls to Upon the Men at Work Below—The Waters Running Through the Shaft Failed to Come to the Surface—The Bodies of the Victims Were Found on the Grounds.

CHICAGO, February 17.—In a brief interview held with A. L. Sweet, president of the four mines comprising the Diamond Mine company, he confirms the reports of the terrible disaster at Broadford. Mr. Sweet's information is that 300 men were in the various shafts, yesterday afternoon, when the ground sagged in under the weight of water that had both saturated and loosened it. Sixty-two were in one shaft, which caught the bulk of the falling debris, and which was instantly flooded. Every one of them was drowned or smothered inside of five minutes. Their bodies are now buried under many tons of earth. One hundred acres have been excavated, and the miners, except in the one unfortunate shaft, escaped.

AT THE SCENE OF THE DISASTER. Broadford is filled with lamentation, owing to the terrible disaster of yesterday, which resulted in the death of seventy persons. A number of those killed leave families. The accident occurred in the north-east side of shaft No. 2, the Wilmington Coal Mining and Manufacturing company's mine. This company is one of the four which form the Wilmington coal association. The shaft in which the accident occurred has been working for the past eight years. It is situated at Diamond, a little village about four miles out of West Wilmington, and two miles north of Broadford. The country thereabout is as level as a floor, with perhaps a slight elevation toward the mines. A sudden and heavy rainfall transformed the prairie into a lake for miles. About Diamond the water stands from six inches to three feet in depth. With scarcely any warning, the surface appeared an opening from the surface of the earth into the mine. The surface being covered with water, it took only a short time for the water to permeate the entire mine, drowning all who were unable to get out before the rising water caught them. In the opening of this mine a shaft seventy five feet deep was sunk into the earth. At right angles to this two main galleries were run nearly parallel, with a surface of earth, and about seventy five feet below from these main galleries, narrow spurs or gangways are dug out in various directions. These spurs rise and fall with the ledge of coal, sometimes rising to within twelve or fifteen feet of the surface. It was at such points, very near the top, where the break occurred.

THE CHILL OF DEATH. While lying on his back, picking away at coal above, the earth must have fallen upon the doomed miner. Through the opening this made, the water poured in, filling one gang way after another, and cutting off escape centers of escape. He was unable to give the alarm, for in less than an hour from the time the break occurred every avenue of escape was cut off, and every occupant of the mine at that time must have been killed. The giving of the alarm was a narrow, and only by painfully slow crawling could the victims escape. No noise accompanied the rising of the waters and the first indication they had of their danger was many of the dead bodies floating to the surface. The bodies were seen along the pathway in which they lay at work. There was the shaft offering an additional avenue of escape, of which many availed themselves, but the water came in so rapidly to allow all to reach the surface. The mine was not considered very dangerous, though a break had occurred once before, at about the same place. There is no chance of rescue, but in order to reach the bodies of the dead, Mr. Fordyce, general manager of the company, has gone to the scene of the disaster with two steam pumps. It is said that an effort will be made to reach the mine from the shaft, but there is not the remotest probability of finding any of the men alive. Only drowned or suffocated remains can be recovered. A majority of the workers under ground are foreigners, English, Scotch and Irish.

DOWN THE TRESTLE. An Accident on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Road Resulted in Two Lives.

Special to The Constitution.

ROME, February 17.—The local freight train No. 59, on the Georgia division of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia road, which left here this morning at 6 o'clock, went through Big Rock creek trestle, just beyond the tunnel, between Rockmart and Wales. The trestle is seventy feet high, and when the engine and one car passed safely over, the trestle gave way, carrying nine cars and the caboose into the creek below, killing three men outright and seriously injuring another. Those killed were a negro brakeman, an engineer named Kidwell, who was deadening his way over the road, and a stranger. The conductor happened to be on the engine at the time of the disaster and escaped unhurt.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT. Intelligence of a terrible accident on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad reached Atlanta yesterday about noon. The accident occurred about 10 o'clock in the morning between the tunnel and Dallas, and by it two men were killed and three injured. The details of the sad affair, as received at the headquarters of the road in this city, are about as follows: Over Rockmart creek, a small stream about half way between the tunnel and Dallas there is a long trestle, which was built after the most approved manner. About 10 o'clock local freight train No. 59, which was coming south, was passing over this trestle. The engine had cleared the trestle, the tender was safely over, and the first car was within a few feet of the solid ground when the second car broke loose from the first and tumbled over the side of the trestle, pulling with it the balance of the train. It is stated that the second car broke down and that they caused the first and second cars to uncouple which resulted in the loss of life. In all eleven cars left the track, and piled themselves up at the foot of the bridge. By the accident, Chase Walker, a colored brakeman, was instantly killed. He was badly mangled by the cars. M. R. Kidwell, an engineer, was so badly injured that he died within three hours. Mr. Kidwell was in charge of engine No. 33, which he left at the tunnel, when he boarded the freight train for the purpose of coming to Atlanta to spend Sunday with his family, whose home is on Fair street. The character of the accident is other than that which resulted in his death are unknown. In addition to this loss of life Carl Kemp and John Cox, two brakemen were more or less injured, but at last account they were still alive. The eleven cars are a total wreck, but the trestle is only slightly injured and will be ready for trains to-day. The bridge was recently given a thorough and critical examination by competent judges and was thought to be safe. In fact the accident is in no way attributed to the structure, but to the breaking of the car which jumped the track and pulled with it the rest of the train. Assistant Superintendent Batty,

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

ATLANTA, GA., February 17th, 1883.
BELIEVING THAT THE TIME HAS COME when Atlanta demands and will sustain an afternoon paper that is first-class in every respect, we announce that on Saturday afternoon, February 24th, instant, we shall begin the publication of

THE ATLANTA EVENING STAR.

The Star will be as handsome as the resources of our establishment can make it.

It will be served with the Associated Press dispatches which we have secured from the Constitution Publishing Company, and which are now printed only in the Atlanta Constitution.

It will be edited by experienced journalists and writers of well-known ability.

We pledge ourselves that it will be first-class in every respect.

Further details concerning this enterprise will be given to the public before the day of publication.

Is numbered with the things of the past, but the pleasant memory of the cordial reception and bountiful hospitality accorded visitors by the citizens of our sister city by the sea, is only excelled by the liberal terms for which T. C. F. H. I. G. is so justly noted.

A few days ago a lady in Eastman wrote a letter addressed to the cheapest furniture house in Georgia, in which she stated that she supposed Mr. P. H. Snook had withdrawn from the house as she didn't see his name to the advertisement, but hoped that his successors in business would still fill orders for the "$175 furniture for four rooms of a house," including hall, bed-room, dining-room and parlor.

No. 7 and 9 Marietta street.

There is no successor to P. H.
Snook, for the simple reason that I'm still in the business, at the old stand.
My name may not have appeared to the advertisement because "P. H.
Snook" and "The Cheapest Furniture House in Georgia" are of one and the same thing. A letter addressed to either will reach the other. Whatever either advertises to do the other will scrupulously carry out, and if you can't think of one name why then try the other name. The main thing is to get the right house and low prices and fine quality of goods.

My Statement
In last Sunday's Constitution was a revelation and demonstrated to the public that my method of discounts places all competitors at a great disadvantage, and in order to fairly meet my prices they will be forced to adopt my method. Will they do it?

DeGree's Opera House can be emptied in five minutes.

My Table Shows
That my profits and expenses come from the manufacturers from whom I buy my furniture, and not my customers. It also clearly shows that the more goods I sell the cheaper I can sell them.

Why?
My unprecedented sales for 1882 have given me an extra discount of five per cent for 1883, thus enabling me to give

WHAT WE HAVE TO SAY AND

ACT ACCORDINGLY.

DOHME & DUFFY

Reg leave to speak to you this morning on business, but you will say this is Sunday and no day to talk business. That is all very true, but this is the best day for us to speak to you, and we hope to speak to every housekeeper in Atlanta to-day. You will say, what have Dohme & Duffy got to say? Now, they are always saying something that is very true.
Dohme & Duffy talk all the time, but who are they talking for? Is it not in the interest of the housekeepers of Atlanta? Why, of course it is. Do we not want to guard the people against extortion? Now, if you will listen to us for a little while, we will tell you a story about a brother grocery man.

There was once on time, not very long ago, a man by the name of John, who kept a grocery store in this city. John was a very nice man, and he did a very nice business, but which was mostly all credit. One day he was asked by one of his brother grocery men how it was he could afford to give so much credit? Here is his answer, and I want every housekeeper to read it carefully. Well, you see, I give credit to every person that comes in here. You see, they will trade with me for three or four months anyway, and by that time I will be square with them. If they buy of me they will have to pay me my price.
When they quit me they may owe me from ten to fifteen dollars. Well, what are you going to do with that ten or fifteen dollars; do you lose that much? No, sir, I do not.
You see I have 100 people who trade with me on books. I take that fifteen dollars and I divide it into 100 parts, which will give me, when equally divided, 15 cents to each. So you see I charge that amount up to every person who has a book with me. Now, what have you to say? Did this man do right or did he do wrong? Do you mean to tell Dohme & Duffy that you do right when you pay a man $1.00 for a pound of tea when you can get it at Dohme & Duffy's for 65 cents per pound? Is it right for you to pay $1.00 for 28 pounds of grits when you can get 40 pounds from Dohme & Duffy? Let me ask you if it is right for you to pay 40 cents per pound for butter when you can get 3½ pounds for $1.00 at Dohme & Duffy's? May we ask if it is right for you to pay $1.00 for 4 pounds butter when you can get 5½ pounds from Dohme & Duffy? Is it right for you to pay $1.00 for 10 pounds rice when you can get better goods at Dohme & Duffy's 14 pounds for $1.00.

Now we would like to ask you if there is any common sense in your paying 20 cents per can for corn, when you can buy 7 cans $1 at Dohme & Duffy's? Now what have you got to say in argument of these facts? Why, you can say nothing, only that I have traded with my old groceryman a long while, he's a good man, honest, and very obliging; he will come to our house every morning before we are out of bed for our order. This is all very good, but do you know that you are paying very dear for this accommodation. This puts us in mind of a lady who went to buy $1.00 worth of coffee and $1.00 worth of tea and $1.00 worth of sugar for the sake of getting a chromo. They would not give her a chromo on sugar, so she would not take the goods because she did not get a chromo with the sugar.

Now, did this lady do right by not taking the goods? She did, for Dohme & Duffy sold her 5 pounds of the same coffee for $1.00.
She was only getting 4 pounds. D. & D. sold her 1 pound of the best mixed tea for 65 cents. She was paying $1.00 for it. D. & D. sold her 11 pounds sugar for $1.00. She was only getting 10 pounds. Now, here was a savings of 70 cents on $3.00. Now, are you not paying very high for your chromos? Take our advice. When you go into a store to buy goods and a man offers you a chromo tell him to please give you a little better weight or measure and you believe you will decline taking a chromo. Now, supposing you look around your house on Monday morning and see what you want in the grocery line. Put $10.00 in your pocketbook; go to three or four of the cracked-up stores in this city; get the prices; put them down so as you will remember them; then you come to Dohme & Duffy, and if our goods are cheaper and better goods it is your duty to buy from us. We claim that even if we did not give any more groceries for $1.00 than any other grocery men in this city, that we are entitled to your trade. You will say, how is that? What obligations are we under to Dohme & Duffy, that we should give them our trade? There is every reason why you should trade with Dohme & Duffy, read the following and then you will say that Dohme & Duffy was the first grocery house in Atlanta to sell 40 pounds Grits for $1.00. 15 pounds of Rice for $1.00, 11 cans Tomatoes for $1.00, 7 cans corn for $1.00, 12 pounds currants for $1.00, 5 pounds butter for $1.00. Before Dohme & Duffy opened business in Atlanta you had to pay $2.00 per pound for Tea, you only got 25 pounds of Grits for $1.00, they only give you 8 pounds of Rice for $1.00, and about 6 cans Tomatoes for $1.00, and we are told that they only gave you 7 pounds of currants for $1.00, still the wholesale price for these goods at that time was undoubtedly cheaper than they are now.

And do not hesitate one moment to say that if Dohme & Duffy was not in business in Atlanta to-day you would have to pay the same prices now that you did before they came here. Now, we have got no more to say to you this morning, only we hope to have a about 5,000 more customers to come and see us this week. We want to make the Gate City Tea and Coffee store, 85 Whitehall street, the best store in the south.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS.

The Performance of the Past Week and of the

The performance of the past week has been good, and much of the behavior on the part of the audience, had. Much has been written about "big bonnets," or "bats." There are other things far more amusing.

There are many who go to the opera house to be pleased, and sometimes instructed, but loud talking and whispering during the performance, often seriously interfere. If the music between the acts is of a character to listen at, accompaniments with cane on the back of chairs or with feet on the floor, prevents any very pleasurable emotion. Then, too, the galleries particularly are ill timed and demonstrative in their applause. There is yet a serious annoyance and one that often results in a breach of etiquette—it is the often gentlemen engage seats in or near the middle of a row of chairs, after reaching those seats at a performance, very often ladies are occupying chairs at each end of the row, and yet between every act, they must stand up, for these gentlemen to pass out and in for refreshments. Some would call it a breach of good taste. Not only this, but gentlemen who accompany ladies to the opera house, go out for refreshments. This is not only a matter of etiquette but, reprehensible for a lady in public to be the attention and protection of her escort. It is a reprehensible practice, a disrespectful act towards ladies, and ladies should not tolerate it.

On Monday and Tuesday Miss Bertha Welby will occupy the opera house and produce "Ole Woman's Life." In speaking of the play, an exchange says:

"The play is a capital one, and is drawing well from the press and comes to the city well heralded. She is a lady of prepossessing person and the possessor of dramatic qualifications which are doubtless designed to secure her advancement in popular regard, and is gifted with remarkable talents. She is an emphatic actress of great power, and will win a high rank in the profession. Her acting is graceful and natural in the extreme; her voice is sweet, clear, well modulated, resonant and under perfect control, stamping her as one of the leading actresses on the American stage."

The Masons will double bill in welcoming Miss Bertha Welby to the opera house. Mr. O'Reilly's name will always be remembered by the fraternity as the champion of the order in the warfare waged by Barlow, Wilson, and Company. Mr. O'Reilly is living in New York, but Bartha, his youngest daughter, is the pride and joy of his old age.

Lawrence Barrett will occupy the opera house

Wednesday night, and produce his new play, "Bo-ker's tragedy." "Francis, or the King's Daughter," and "The Boy of the West," are the titles of the plays which Barrett has produced in New York, and which have been successful in that city. Barrett is a well known actor, and to-day he is being more than any other actor in the city, called to build up American dramatic art. For this he deserves encouragement. On a former occasion, Barrett was shown his enthusiasm for national distinction in dramatic authorship when he gave another proof of his talent in the production of "The American Girl," as it is to be developed by the American author's work in the theatrical and dramatic art. The story from which the play is founded, has been told in many forms of poetic beauty. It is from the story of a young girl, who is full of romantic incidents and tragic features.

Barlow & Wilson's misanthropic combination, occupy the opera house, Wednesday night, and to-day they will produce "The American Girl," as it is to be

FOR RENT,

WARM ROOMS,

SITUATED IN THE CITY OF ATLANTA, GA.

1,800 feet above sea level; possesses more natural advantages as a summer or winter resort, for both pleasure and health-seekers than any other place in the south.

The spring is indeed a wonder—effulgent without variation, fourteen hundred (1,400) gallons of water per minute, temperature 90°, with most valuable medicinal ingredients, principally iron, sulfur, silica, magnesia, etc., as shown by analysis, and supplying the most delicious bathing in America.

Good hotel, cabins, livery stable, store, gardens, orchards, together with two thousand acres of land, 150 in cultivation, all in one tract. Titles perfect.

Address or call on CHAS. L. DAVIS, Prop'r.

Warm Springs, Georgia.
